Sound familiar?

The roster lives everywhere

20 to 100+ rotating crew scattered across spreadsheets, WhatsApp threads, email chains, and Dropbox.

You are the single point of failure

One last-minute cancellation cascades into hours of manual call-downs. Every fix runs through you.

The week-before scramble

A missed call time or a missing sub turns into all-night email sessions before every gig.

Production company or five piece band, the break is the same: there is no one system.

One place to staff, brief, and run gigs.

-  Build and staff every gig, with ranked backup call lists that fill subs in hours
-  Call sheets and schedules everyone actually sees
-  Crew messaging next to the work, not buried in group texts
-  Pay everyone instantly, Stripe-powered and 1099-ready
-  Every role sees only its own information

Most teams book their first gig within two minutes after setup.

Operators get their weeks back.
